

Good morning.

Weekend rains across many parts of the dry areas of the US are pressuring corn and soybeans while wheat is higher from good global high protein import demand (Egypt and Algeria) along with a rally in EU wheat futures. The US will trend drier this week than that of last week but the improvement in soil moisture for the WCB should stabilize crop conditions.

Romanian wheat was the lowest offer for Egypt's import tender at $261.49/ton. Algeria seeks at least 50,000 tons of wheat for Sep-Aug shipment. Lower than expected palm oil export data for the month of July and increasing global Covid-19 cases rolled palm oil futures over overnight. Malaysian pam October futures were down 249 points and cash off $50.00/ton to $1,030.00/ton. Offshore values are leading SBO 41 points higher and meal $0.40 higher. Look for private US production estimates to be released early this week. One survey should be out shortly after the close. There were 95 meal deliveries (table below).
